the same manner as were the martyrs of the Church. He drew up his shoulders, trembled with excitement, and shook his fingers at me all the time he was spluttering his wrath. It was frightfully embarrassing to have hime to coriate me among my friends, to whom I had introduced him. It all ended in my coming to hamerica and soon after my arrival here I learned what the Mormon Church really was an diettit.

"I learned little of Taylor's history, except that he was once a Methodist preacher and an Englishman. He was one of Joe Smith's eard worthy of those I knew. He was very credulous, but also sinister. He belonged to the converts, and was the most zealous and worthy of those I knew. He was very credulous, but also sinister. He belonged to the converts, and was the most zealous and ordinary man in many-respects. He had little skill in managing, and his accomplishments were meager. For this he made up in enthusiasm. Ho did not remain in France over a year and did not a much to do with the making of conversions. His work was the superintending of the translation, and that completed he came back to this country. I left the Church here in St. Louis and never saw him after I left France. He was an old man then, but very straight and strong looking. I have not followed his career since, only in the general way any newspaper reader might. I have no connection with the Church, though some of the friends of the Paris days are now in Utah, zealous Mormons."

Little Proposition to Acquire Property, Which the Company Proposed to Offer— The Sprinkling Contracts Before the Council—Protests From Grand Avenue

The bridge and tunnel terminal bill only awaits the signature of the Mayor to make i a law. With one alteration it remains as it passed from the hands of the company into the drawn up for presentation to the Municipal Assembly it contained the following provision:

Sec. 5. Whenever said companies shall have acquired ground sufficient for the establishment of yards and depots alongside of their single or double tracks herein authorized, and any streets or alleys shall intervene between said tracks and ground, or between blocks of property so acquired, the said companies may, upon application to and upon consent being given by the Board of Public Improvements, have the right to cross such streets or alleys under such conditions as may be prescribed by the Board of Public Improvements.

Councilmen Rohan and O'Malley of that committee. Street Commissioner Turner is ready to give orders to begin work under the contracts as soon as he is notified of their approval. He believes that under the ordinance the whole city should be sprinkled, but he is in favor of inaugurating it by districts, as soon as the Council will approve of the contracts. He regards the proposition to hold all the work in check until the last contract is let as a very narrow construction of the ordinance. His recommendations to the Board of Public Improvements on the thirty-sizht contracts already awarded will be repeated to the Council committee should they desire advice on the figures. The daily consumption of water this year over last year amounts to about 4,000,000 gallons. By placing the four temporary pumps in position all trouble concerning the pumping capacity will be obviated. The only danger is that the Compton Hill mains will not stand the requisite pressure. As this is a danger which is increasing year by year the Board favors the appropriation of $210,000 for running a new main to the reservoir.

Judge Laughlin will try to get his Elevated Cable bill through the Council by Friday night. The fight made on presented their objections to the Council Committee and to several of the councilmen personally. The principal objection is against running the road down the alley just south of the Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church to and across Grand avenue. This plan if followed will cross Grand avenue with two tracks.

LEMONS AND SUGAR. What the Flower Mission Sent to the Hespitals To-Day. The Flower Mission was on hand again to help the sick and weary at the hospitals get through these heated days. It made one feel through these heated days. It made one feel cooler and better all around to see the ladies busy in the Book Concern rooms this morning tying up bouquets and other little cheering gifts. But the most suggestive thing was the pile of lemons and the papers of sugar, which opened up to the imagination great fountains of lemonade for the thirsty throats at the hospitals. The ladies needed just one thing to make their work complete, and that was literature. They were short of story papers and that literature which pleases the sick.

The ladies who were thus happily engaged this morning were: Mesdames Coe, Mauro, Fife, Wilson. Hunt-Smith, Wilson, H. A. Smith, Cooper and Misses Leavenworth, Wilson McCluny, Cotton, Arndt, Bradburn, Anderson. The donations were as follows From Kirkwood, flowers, by Mrs. H. E. Bridge, Y. W. C. T. U., T. D. Kimball and Mrs. A. S. Mermod; city, Miss Fife, Florence Whitney, Miss Cozzens, Mrs. Matt Murray, Mr. Drew, the Misses McCluny and Mrs. Keener.

Literature was sent in by Mrs. Hunt-Smith, Mrs. Judson Allen, Mrs. George Stroutman, Mrs. Win. G. Gibson and Miss Bradburn. Miss Arndt donated mint and Mrs. Gibson sugar. Misses Eliza and Jessie Howard gave it each. Distributions were as follows:

It seems to me to be a most fan puerility and one calculated to bring both the tempt. The Prince of Wales has merely re ceived this appointment in order that he may be qualified to wear another becoming uni-form. There seems to be no limit to the tailoring craze which now prevails in what are termed "exalted quarters." Even King George IV. never went to the length of getting imself made an Admiral. It is a grievous esurrection of the sort of fatuous extravaance which prevailed at the French court or a century before the revolution.

ROYAL JUBILEE EXPENSES.

The papers continue to indulge in rigmarole guessing about the amount of the court ex-penses in connection with the jubilee. The World gives $500,000, the Pall Mall Gazette, $1,000,000, and the London correspondents, $400,000. I stated a fortnight ago that the Queen's outlay would not exceed $250,000, and I have since heard from an unexceptional authority that $240,000 is about the total. There is not the slightest foundation for the unjustifiable report that the Queen was desirous to obtain a Parliamentary grant towards the outlay. There is a large accumulation from the civil list, and it was long ago settled that everything was to be naid out of this. It should be re membered by the people who talk wildly o $500,000, that the royalties from abroad wer only the guests of the Queen for a few days, and that there were no extra entertainn except half a dozen state banquets, one bal and a Buckingham Palace garden party. The most preposterous exaggerations have been published in connection with the court to the length of announcing that fifty clerks had been employed by the master of the household at Buckingham Palace. All the stories about the redecorating and refurnishing of the the electric field in the person of Frank E. palaces are myths, as hardly anything was Fisher, manager of the Detroit Electrical done beyond the ordinary routine work.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 27.—A fatal duel was fought yesterday evening on the banks of the Yazoo river, opposite Greenwood, Miss., between George Evans and Bud Harris, both well-known colored men. The men selected double-barreled shotguns, which were loaded with buckshot. Only two paces apart they stood, the muzzles of the guns almost touching, when the word was given to fire. Both responded almost at the safe moment. Evans fell dead, his breast torn to pieces, and Harris was fatally wounded.

Assistant Principal Prof. Wilber F.
Bliss of the High School, Beaver, Pa., who has just returned from a brief visit to Chicago, called at the Van Zandt mansion while there upon invitation of Mr. Van Zandt, whom he knew, and gives the following account of Mrs. Nina Van Zandt Spies, whose notoriety is world-famed:

"Mrs. Spies, as she prefers to be called, is not, as some of the reports concerning her have lately said, careworn, dejected and consumptive-looking, but is robust, vivacious and healthy in appearance. As she converses she has an imperious way of tapping the carpet with her shapely foot and emphasizing her remarks with a gesture which seems to say: 'I believe what I say whether you do or not.' After she had welcomed us she bowed us into the parlor, and, taking her seat upon the piano stool, she motioned us to easy chairs on either side. It was a luxuriously furnished apartment, and in the window hung a fine portrait of August Spies, while on the center table rested another. When the commonplace topics of conversation had been exhausted, Mrs. Spies said, as she took the portrait from the table and handed it to one of us, 'Isn't that a fine looking man?'

"She then talked in a free-and-easy manner about the 'comedy,' as she termed Spies' trial. She told us of her acquaintance with him and of their marriage. She spoke very kindly of the Sheriff, and said that he allowed her to go and see Spies until public clamor ferbade it. It was only a temporary stop, however, for as soon as the excitement subsided she was again admitted to the jail, and she now visits her husband, as she fondly calls him, daily. She says no other ceremony has been performed save the marriage by proxy.

"Of the reports concerning her domestic and private life which have found their way into print, the lady expressed complete disgust, and said that not one article in a hundred had a grain of truth among barrels of chaff. No reporters were admitted, and w manufactured by the repositions selves.

"She receives an enormous amount of mail matter every day, consisting of letters, papers and circulars on socialistle matters. They come from all parts of the world. Letters addressed to Miss Van Zandt, United States, reach her, and one addressed to Miss Van Zandt, North America, came to her through the mail."

NEW YORK, July 27, 11 a. m.—The stock market opened heavy to weak this morning first prices showing declines from yesterday's final figures of from 18 to 12 per cent, the latter in Pacific Mail. There was a degree of animation in the early dealings quite unusual. The market was feverish and irregular, but generally further slight declines of 18 24 per cent were established in the first few minutes. Prices were later earried small fractions above opening figures, but decided weakness was afterward developed and declines from the best figures ranging up to 18 per cent were established. The decline was checked shortly before 11 o'clock, and now the market is moderately active and unsettled.

Noon—Money is easy at 526 per cent. Bar sliver, 35%. The stock market after 11 o'clock showed little of the activity of the first hour, though a fair business was done in a few stocks. There was, however, a more settled tone to the dealings and slight gains over 11 o'clock gures were made throughout the list. These were subsequently lost, prices yielding on the latter part of the hour, and at noon the market is quiet but heavy at a shade under 11 o'clock prices.

3 p. m.—The stock market closed weak at the prices.

3 p. m.—The stock market closed weak at the lowest figures of the day.

perature in eastern portion, lower temperature in western portion.
Cautionary signals continue at New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola and are ordered for Cedar Keys, and cautionary southeastern signals are ordered for Jacksonville section to Charleston.
The barometer has been highest in Montana, Northern Michigan and Northern Dakota; it has been lowest in the southern plateau region, Lower Missouri valley and Eastern Gulf, where in the latter region a cyclone is now central, which on the morning of the 26th was reported from Havana as moving northward west of Cuba.
The temperature has fallen in Colorado, Nebraska, the northern plateau region, the Northwest, along the Central Gulf coast, in the Middle Atlant c States and New England. It has risen in the South Atlantic States, the Ohio and Central Mississippi Valleys and Lower Michigan; elsewhere it has remained nearly stationary.
The rivers will remain nearly stationary.

THE RIVERS.

River about 11.5, a very slight advance.

The John Gilbert went out to-day to Cape Girardeau, while the boat in that trade, the Risbet, goes on the ways at Mound City.

The Gem City in the Keokuk trade was late getting in last night, and lays over until to-morrow at 4 p. m. to keep on regular time. Remember the mighty Dakotan for Kansas City. Patronize a line that deserves patron-age for the way it has built up a trade of inter-est to St. Louis.

Banker Van Heyst and His Wife Tell Thei

EASTON, N. J., July 27.-The hearing in th wife. Van Heyst, with his attorneys, came here Monday night. The first thing done was the reading of Van Heyst's traverse to the return of the writ of habeas corps. In it he Louisville by Zach Phelps, Cleveland by F. E. turn of the writ of habeas corps. In it he denies that Mrs. Van Heyst bad reason to leave her home in Holland, denies baving committed adultery with a domestic, avers that he is well off and keeps two servants, and that Van Doren seduced his wife and persuaded her to fly to America. Van Heyst demands the custody of his little girl, whom his wife brought with her. In reply, Van Doren and Mrs. Valley, Mrs. Van Heyst demands the custody of his little girl, whom his wife brought with her. In reply, Van Doren and Mrs. Valley, Mrs. Van Heyst asserted that her husband does not care for the child in question, and that he has not suitable means of taking care of her. Mr. Van Heyst testified that he lived on the interest of his money in Boxtel, had sons older than the girl; that he kept two maid servants and a man that, and when he returned on July 5 he found his wife and child gone. They had departed on July 1. He had received a letter dated June 5 from his wife, telling him he need not houry home. This letter was read in court. He had given his wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church. He received 29,000 guilders wanted at the stores. Van Doren was his best friend and frequently visited his house. He and his wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church. He received 29,000 guilders when he was married and later, 3,000. His wife had brought him 5,000 guilders in court (5,000 guilders, a rotal of about (5,000 guilders, or about $17,000. He had always treated his wife well. His sister had volunteered to keep his house for him if he could get his daughter back.

Lawyer Borsch, who accompanied Van Heyst, read the Holland law. If gives all the wife had brought him 5,000 guilders in court of the string of turn of the writ of habeas corps. In it he denies that Mrs. Van Heyst had reason to leave her home in Holland, denies having commit-ted adultery with a domestic, avers that he is well off and keeps two servants, and that Van

It has a description of the state of t syndicate of business men have, through a lawyer in this city, made to a few leading men among the operators a proposition by which the syndicate is to raise $500,000 as a cash payment on the $3,500,000, which is the price at which Mr. Garrett will sell the property. The property is then to be turned over to a cooperative or similar association of the employes, who will guarantee 6 per cent to the syndicate on its $500,000, and to Mr. Garrett on the $3,000,000 balance, and will devote any surplus to the paying off of the purchase price. The only requirement that the syndicate makes is that the telegraph company shall always be maintained as an independent line, and shall enter into no combination or pooling arrangement with other companies.

"I do not know whether the scheme is likely to succeed or not. It all depends upon Mr. Garrett. The papers containing the proposition of the syndicate have been drawn up and have been or soon will be presented to him. His efforts to effect a combination with the Western Union, through Jay Gould, have failed, because Gould make no dicker unless it would include all the opposition to the Western Union. He would not buy the Baltimore & Ohio only to obtain the field for a new rival in the Postal. Mr. Mackay absolutely refused to make any contract or arrangement with the Baltimore & Ohio which would have made it possible for a transfer of the latter to the Western Union to carry the Postal with it. If Mr. Garrett sees how the syndicate's scheme will get him help for his railroad plans, which was the object of his negotiations with Gould, then the scheme will be carried through. If he doos not see this the scheme will fail. The object of the syndicate is to secure the maintenance of a permanent rival to the Western Union, nothing more. They expect nothing but that, beyond the interest on their money."

"I know," was the response, "I don't mean championship games, but I am satisfied with exhibition games."

"That might be arranged," said Mr. Day.
"In fact, I have no doubt that you would be allowed to play exhibitions in your city on Sunday."

Last year I paid three quarters of all the fines imposed, or nearly $800 of the $1,200 paid into the treasury.

MIKOFF IS BYRNE'S MAN, and so Byrne was not at the meeting. We will get rid of this man, Wikoff, you can bet on it. Why, to show you how incompetent he is he supplied averages to two Cincinnati papers and after they were printed sent to my Secretary, George Munson, for the score of a game at St. Louis. How could he make up and is sue official averages when he did not have the plays made by eighteen men in a game at St. Louis? He also forgets to have official umpires in Brooklyn, so that a club must take a Brooklyn man. Another thing. Byrne used my name wrong. I agreed to have him use my name to have Umpire Mitchell sent to Staten Island for Monday in exchange for McQuaid and he used it to have the poor fellow removed altogether. Then we had to put up with a substitute and were robbed out of the game. No more funny business for me. We have a couple of applications for Wikoff's piace. One is Joe Pritchard of St. Louis and the other is Harry H. Diddlebock of Philadel phia. I don't care which one gets it, or if neither gets it, but I do want to get a man who knows his business and will not be dictated to."

Among the clubs represented at the meeting yesterday it was informally agreed that hereafter a guarantee of $65 will not be accepted for playing with the Brooklyn Club at Ridgewood on Sunday. Mr. Watrous of the Mets said his club would play there next Sunday, and that he would exact 40 per cent of the gate receipts. All the Association members were greatly agitated and war is threatened.

DIED AMONG HIS BLACKS.

Tom Bean, an Eccentric Texas Millionaire Who Lived With Negroes.

BONHAN, Tex., July 26.—Tom Bean, the wealthiest, one of the oldest, and altogether the most eccentric of the residents of this country, died here, surrounded by negroes with whom he had lived for many years. Mr. Bean came here in 180 or 1822 as a surveyor, and, while lands were cheap, and surveyors scarce, he surveyed on shares, thereby securing thousands of acres of the most valuable land in Fannin County and North Texas. He lived in powerty and seclusion, being an old bacher, and aver sold a foot of land except for the payment of taxes. Ward's reason for offering his resignation as captain of the New York Club was simply this: That he had no confidence in the ability of Jim Mutrie to manage the club properly off the field. Ward did not believe in divided responsibility. He has mere than once stated his belief that the captain should have rull and exclusive control of the playing department of a team—that is, he should direct those matters not only on but off the field; he should "place" the players, select the batteries, arrange batting orders, and attend to all details which affect the play of the team. He declares that a practical ball-player, who is in close contact with the players at all times, who sees and understands every point of play better than any onlooker possibly can, is naturally better fitted than any one else. With the two-headed arrangement existing in most clubs in this particular, the control and responsibility vaguely divided, there can be no definite plan pursued in the direction of the club's playing, while with a one-headed control and a centered responsibility, systematic work becomes possible. As an evidence that the best results can be reached in this way only, it is simply necessary to refer to the continued success of the Chicagos and St. Louis Browns, in which this arrangement has existed for some time. Anson and Comiskey are doubtless great captains, but the fact that they have the power of control over the matters for which they are held responsible gives them a very decided advantage. It is not necessary or even desirable that a captain should be also the manager. It is necessary for every club. to have a manager, not to control the players, but to manage the business affairs of the club. This alone is enough to occupy the entire attention of any man in connection with any League or Association club, and especially is this so in the metropolis, the largest field for any manager to canvass and look after. Further, Ward has differed from the management in its policy in the development of its young players. He has favored the playing of these men, pitchers and catchers, regularly from the start, until th That he had no confidence in the ability of Jim Mutrie to manage the club properly off the leaned over him with his arm encircling affectionately the puglist's neck. As article after article was read and ratified the mighty furrows of thought in Smith's forehead were practically filled up with a bump of complacency. At length the instrument regarding the choice of raferee is reached, Fox wants this important official appointed at the ringside. Fleming says "No." He is quite convinced that Mr. Fox wants the match on a fair and square basis, but unwittingly he is allowing Kiirain a loophole through which, should he so desire, he may escape confronting the London boy. If he did not like the referee he could leave the ring and the match would be a fizzle. "I demand that the referee be appointed a week before the contest by one of the authorized judges of the fighters." Fox agrees, and a smile that has something of the scraphic illumines Jem's sullen countenance.

He laughs, and the Sporting Life building shivers. He walks up and down while the floor gives forth a succession of dull thuds. He sits down in the chair which complained bitterly of its harsh treatment.

Once again the expression of intensified intelligence takes possession of Jem's face. Once again the expression of intensified in-telligence takes possession of Jem's face. He is signing his name (a matter of some three minutes), "James Smith, St. Luke's, Lon-don," in characters an inch high, that is if they were all of them standing up straight, which they are not. Fox then signs for Kilrain, and the match is made.

billiard player is now in Paris, and the letter is dated from the Grand Hotel, July 14. He says that he has made a match with Vignaux for $1,000 a side, and has already deposited $500 forfeit. The match will begin on October 16, will be under balk-line rules, 600 points per night for five nights. Schaefer says he cannot understand why Slosson has come back claiming he could not get a match, as Vignaux was ever ready to accommodate him by putting up money in any amount desired. "Slosson was afraid of him," adds Schaefer, "but wanted to tell a cock-and-bull story on his return to America so as togain a little more notoriety." The champion says he will not return until late in October, Meanwhile he will visit all the large cities in Germany besides other points of interest on the continent.

At London, England, French boxing has been introduced (hands and feet), and it has met with great favor. It is not new in England. Conquests were frequent in Owen Swift's time. After the fatal termination of Swift's battle with Brighton Bill he took up his residence in Paris. He tried conclusions with one of these "hands and-feet" boxers.
